

Self-referral to limited-service hospitals: Bad for America's health care system!

FACT Fax

Physician-owners can – and do – steer patients to the facilities they own.

Patients rely on their physicians to determine what care to get and where to get it. When physicians own limited-service hospitals, they have a financial incentive to steer patients to those facilities – which the data suggests is exactly what happens.

Make permanent the ban on physician self-referral to new limited-service hospitals.
