

Stephanie Laws, MSN, RN

Stephanie Laws is the Executive Director of the Rural Health Innovation Collaborative and serves as the Manager of the Telehealth & Innovative Technologies Department at Union Hospital in Terre Haute, IN. She has been involved in rural health issues for 15 years including the clinical provision of health services as well as the overall coordination of telemedicine services to the west central Indiana and east central Illinois region.

Stephanie is actively involved in telemedicine activities with statewide and national partners and has worked extensively with colleagues to advance the use of telemedicine in rural communities to fill service gaps and improve the overall quality of health care services through technology. Stephanie is the current director of the Wabash Valley Rural Telehealth Network, a member of the American Telemedicine Association, National Rural Health Association, Indiana Rural Health Association, Indiana Organization of Nurse Executives, Indiana FCC Telehealth Advisory Committee, and served as a past president for the West Central Indiana Area Health Education Center.