

Caring for our Caregivers

Monday, September 25, 2017

12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m. ET

The American Hospital Association's Hospitals Against Violence initiative invites you to an upcoming webinar to learn about a program in Washington D.C., designed to care for our caregivers.

MedStar Georgetown University Hospital will share about their Care for the Caregiver program, a program created to provide 24-hour care to the hospital's associates and physicians, who are experiencing a stressful event or outcome during patient care or due to the work environment. The Care for the Caregiver program provides resources and support, as well as access to colleagues trained in addressing the needs of those experiencing the emotional aftershock of dealing with traumatic care delivery, regardless of the outcome.

Please join us to hear more about implementing a program that addresses the needs of our caregivers.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify essential components to implementing a program that addresses and responds to the needs of caregivers after experiencing traumatic care delivery.
- Describe the benefits of creating a program that cares for health professionals.

Speakers:

Lisa Boyle, M.D. is vice president of medical affairs for MedStar Georgetown University Hospital, overseeing physician relations, as well as quality and safety. She also serves as a liaison between management and the hospital's medical staff.

Eileen Moore, M.D. is a board certified internist and Associate Professor at MedStar Georgetown University Hospital. She is also the Patient Safety Officer at MedStar Georgetown University Hospital and has developed and oversees its Care for the Caregiver Program.

Click here (<https://aha.adobeconnect.com/hav0925/event/registration.html>) to register. Please note that all access information, including toll free dial-in number and call passcode, will be provided via email after you register.

For additional resources, please visit our webpage at www.aha.org/hospitalsagainstviolence.